Election results defy pollsters and pundits

Donald J. Trump is next president

ELECTION 2016

By B.C. Manion
bcmanion@lakerlutznews.com

Pasco County voters joined the nation in selecting Donald J. Trump as the United States' next president in the 2016 general election, while a majority of Hillsborough County voters selected Hillary Rodham Clinton, who had sought to become America's first female president.

Scores of voters took advantage of early voting, but hordes turned out on Nov. 8, eager to cast their ballot on Election Day.

They offered different points of view — in an election widely characterized as being historic, and divisive.

At the Alice Hall Community Center in Zephyrhills, 57-year-old voter Chris Corporra said he voted for Trump because he's a political outsider.

Corporra said he agrees with many of Trump's stances.

"You hire a politician, and you get political results. You get somebody on the outside, and they'll take care of it," Corporra said. "Trump isn't the most polished...but, you know exactly where you stand with him."

As Corporra drove around Zephyrhills before Election Day, he said he noticed long lines at several early voting locations. "They were out in droves. The silent majority is coming out in force."

Kody Roberts, a registered Republican, also voted in Zephyrhills. She supported Jill Stein.

"I like what she stands for; I like her objectives," the 22-year-old Roberts said. "I can't agree with some of Trump's beliefs, and I definitely cannot agree with some of Hillary's, so I was just like, 'You know what, I'm going to go third-party this time.'"

Zephyrhills resident Eric Pinson favored Trump mainly because of his platform to establish immigration controls. Pinson also expressed concern about what could happen to his Second Amendment rights, under a Clinton administration.

Meanwhile, at The Groves, Land O' Lakes resident Jill Shelton stood in a long line to cast her vote. She brought her children,

As Florida goes, so goes the nation...again!

By Dr. Susan A. MacManus

This was an election like no other.

Once again, the Sunshine State was at the epicenter of it all.

For months on end, Florida was the center of attention in the national and international media, with its 29 Electoral College votes up for grabs — the largest number of any swing state.

The candidates visited here over and over. During the last 100 days of the campaign, Trump visited Florida 100 times and Clinton 87 times.

Each made multiple stops here the final week before the election. Other states never saw either of them.

More than $49 million was spent on TV ads run in the Orlando and Tampa media markets — more than in any other media market in the nation.

But, by the time it finally ended, Floridians were just happy it was over. The Election Day brings out voter passions

By Kathy Steele
ksteele@lakerlutznews

The line of voters stretched down the sidewalk at The Groves in Land O' Lakes, as people waited patiently for the doors to open at 7 a.m.

Even after voting began, the line continued to swell.

Long lines also formed at Lexington Oaks, off Wesley Chapel Boulevard.

By 9 a.m., the line in Lexington Oaks was gone, replaced by a late morning trickle of people coming and going.

Wesley Chapel resident Dashawn Williams, who voted at Lexington Oaks, said lines during early voting had been much longer.

On Nov. 8, he said he was done in about 5 minutes. "It was easy," he said.

Meanwhile, at Myrtle Lake Baptist Church, off Collier Parkway, U.S. Rep. Gus Bilirakis stopped by in his tour bus.

He began his rounds in Dade City and planned to make 19 stops.

"It's a good opportunity to thank the volunteers," Bilirakis said.

Here's a synopsis of what some voters had to say on Election Day 2016.

JAMIE NEVITT, LAND O' LAKES

Jamie Levitt, 34, of Land O' Lakes, said she voted for Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"I feel like they both have a lot of issues," she said, a sentiment she believes was shared by most voters.

Still, she thought Clinton was the superior candidate.

"We all have to kind of decide who we think would do best for the country, even though the choices are not spectacular," said Nevitt, who gave her dad a ride to the Lutz Community Center on Election Day, so he could vote.

SHERRI MAGED, LAND O' LAKES

Sherri Maged said she came out to vote at the Land O' Lakes Community Center to fulfill her civic duty.

She voted for Donald J. Trump, but wasn't enthused about Trump or Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"This was very difficult. I don't like either one of them," Maged said, adding she has never felt as conflicted about an election as she did this year.

Plantation Palms Golf Club is in the swing of things

By Kathy Steele
Ksteele@lakerlutznews.com

Ace Golf owners Bill Place and Su Lee renovated Plantation Palms Golf course and opened Irish Mulligans Pub to the public. The golf course also will open to the public on Dec. 5.

Golf is teeing off again at Plantation Palms Golf Club.

After two years of uncertainty over the fate of the golf course and adjoining restaurant, owners of Ace Golf are ready to reopen the four-star Golf Digest golf course to club members on Nov. 30, and to the public on Dec. 5.

The on-site restaurant, Mulligans Irish Pub, opened to the public in October, according to a news release from Ace Golf.

It is similar to two other pubs operated by Ace Golf at golf courses in New Tampa and Tarpon Springs.

The interior is Irish-themed with beamed ceilings and murals. The menu includes salads, burgers, sandwiches and dinner entrees, as well as pub fare such as fish n' chips and Shepherd's pie.

Plantation Palms Golf Club is located at 23253 Plantation Palms Blvd., off Collier Parkway, in Land O' Lakes.

Golf operators also are adding a couple of firsts with an 18-hole miniature golf course and a lighted driving range.

The miniature golf course – designed by Miniature Golf Solutions - is next to the clubhouse and features tropical landscaping, waterfalls, fountains, trick shots and special lighting for night play, according to a press release from Ace Golf.

It opened to the public the second week in November. The lighted driving range will open on Nov. 30.

The miniature golf course is family friendly, but owners also hope it will boost play on the renovated Plantation Palms golf course.

"Some golf operators complain that fewer people are playing golf," Ace Golf co-owner Bill Place said, in a written statement. "But, this does something about it. Lots of kids and families will come out to play miniature golf, see the big golf course and maybe work their way up to it."

Renovations at the course began in May. Work included new greens, restored fairways, a repainted clubhouse and renovations to create Mulligans Irish Pub.

A new banquet room will open in 2017 to host weddings and events.

While the golf course is playable, it will take time for the course to be at peak condition, according to General Manager Kevin Dietsch.

But, in a written statement he said, "The layout remains one of the more challenging and well-loved with rolling hills, ponds, and sculpted terrain."

Plantation Palms closed in 2014 as MJS Golf Group – the previous owner – struggled to survive recurring financial losses and debts. The company bought the course in 2011.

In the past two years, a "Bring Back Our Course" campaign, led by Homeowners Association President Jim Hammond, sought to save the course, but struggled to find a potential buyer with a viable financial plan.

Place, and his wife Su Lee, bought the course in May 2016 in a short sale approved by the federal government.

They opened Ace Golf Ranges more than 20 years ago in Brandon and Riverview. The couple also own Pebble Creek Golf Club, Wentworth Golf Club and Crescent Oaks Country Club.

Hours for the pub and miniature golf course are Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.; and Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. For information, call (813) 996-4653.

Approvals recommended for Connected City pilot

By Kathy Steele
ksteele@lakerlutznews.com

The framework for the Connected City corridor is falling into place.

Members of Pasco County's development review committee recommended approval of new documents establishing fees that will be paid by developers, a utilities service plan and a master roadway plan.

State legislators approved the Connected City in 2015, and selected Pasco as the site for a 10-year pilot program to create communities and new jobs based on cutting edge technology, including gigabit Internet speeds.

The initiative also envisions alternative transportation, including lanes for golf carts, and trails and paths for pedestrians and bicyclists.

Pasco County commissioners will make the final decisions on implementing rules for the state-approved special development district, which covers about 7,800 acres in rural northeast Pasco.

Boundaries generally are Interstate 75, State Road 52, Overpass Road and Curley Road.

That final vote and public hearing, is tentatively scheduled for March 7.

But, the Pasco County Commission is scheduled to have a Dec. 6 workshop to discuss Connected City.

Though the state's pilot program is for 10 years, build out in the district would take another 40 years, with completion expected around 2065.

Preliminary data from the county suggests that in the first phase, from 2016 to 2040, Connected City could generate on average about $20 million a year in property tax revenues. From 2040 to 2065, the annual haul in property tax revenues could be as much as $30 million a year.

The net affect on the county's budget – balancing expenses and revenues - is not known yet, but county staff members are crunching data.

Within the district's boundaries, it is up to property owners and developers if they want to participate in Connected City.

Rules provide an opt-in choice that requires an application process, and a mandated set of requirements and responsibilities.

Overall developers opting in would pay additional mobility fees and surcharges, but also receive incentive credits for such items as building alternative traffic lanes for golf carts and bicyclists.

Estimates peg infrastructure costs, including roads and new schools, at about $329 million over the 50-year time frame.

"We weren't going to force anybody to participate in Connected City," said Earnest Monaco, the county's assistant planning and development director. "If they did nothing, they could continue business as usual."

Oversight of projects would be transferred from the county's development review committee and planning commission to a seven-member management committee. County commissioners would still make final approvals.

The goal is to speed up the process for land use changes, rezoning and permitting.

Members would include the District 1 county commissioner, three people appointed by Metro Development Group, one property owner not part of Connected City, one school district appointee, and a county staff member named by the county administrator.

Metro Development is partnering with Pasco on the initial projects in Connected City. The company plans to build a mixed-use community at Epperson Ranch, which will have a 7-acre manmade "Crystal Lagoon" as a featured centerpiece.

During public comment, concerns were raised about whether incentives given to Connected City property owners would be unfair to property owners who choose not to participate.

"I'm not sure how this is supposed to be," said Randy Maggard, who owns property in the district. "Is this really a level playing field. That's my concern. Is it fair and equitable for everybody at the end of the day?"

Attorney Joel Tew, who represents Metro Development Group, said data shows "there's more than a level playing field."

Residents along Kenton Road — which under the road plan would be expanded from two lanes to four lanes — were split in their support for Connected City.

Resident Jennifer McCarthy said she worried about losing the rural character of a two-lane road where residents enjoy open spaces.

Todd Stevenson, who also lives on Kenton, said he understands why developers are focused on this area of northeast Pasco.

"It's largely undeveloped," he said. "Of course, residents who live there are pretty upset. They like the peace and quiet of the unfiltered space. We have a lot of open space. We enjoy that. It (Connected City) potentially negates why we are there."

But, Chris Joy said he welcomed Connected city even though he would lose land to the widening of Kenton Road.

His property fronts Kenton for nearly a mile, but he said, "It's something in my opinion whose time has come. It's not very pedestrian friendly. We're very much in support of having this despite that our property is going to be split in two."

A welcome return to Florida

By Helene Rubenstein
Grand Horizons

Marty and I finally returned to Florida after leaving Connecticut on Oct. 15, and arriving a few days later to enjoy some nice weather.

On Oct. 14, Bill and Ginny Sarver hosted a Friday Connoisseurs at Red Lobster. I spoke to Ginny, and she told me that they had a very nice lunch menu, and it seemed like everyone enjoyed themselves. The menu consisted of fish dinners, a chicken salad and other choices.

Barb Livingston seems to be praying for a good meal at the Halloween party.

Nearly 40 people attended this function, and because many people were still away at various locations, this was a very nice turnout.

After the meal, they had a variety of shops to visit in search of things they wanted or needed, or they could just go straight home. In other words, they were able to make a nice afternoon of it.

There were several yard sales going on in the park on Oct. 21 and Oct. 22. You could literally find a treasure that you have been looking for but never had any luck in finding. There were all sorts of items for sale, including tools, rugs, books, videotapes, handmade pocketbooks, clothing, shoes and all kinds of knickknacks. Yes, there really was something for everyone.

While riding down a street in the development, you could hear and see aerobics going on at the pool, and hear the instructions for the different exercises. It was a nice day for some women to have workouts in the pool, while other people had yard sales.

On Oct. 30, 78 people were greeted at the community center by pumpkins, witches, goblins, spiders and ghosts, for a Halloween party. The banners and other decorations that were on the walls created a festive atmosphere.

I did not attend this event, but from what I heard from Gary Wilcox, everyone had a good time. There was plenty of dancing, and Karl Sapp played an assortment of music.

While he writes and plays mostly country music, he also has a good variety of rock & roll songs in his repertoire. His standard saying is, "See ya on the dance floor," and they sure do meet there.

Besides the dancing, prizes were awarded for the top three Halloween costumes. The third place award went to Judi Davis as Mrs. Santa Claus; second place went to June Weinle as the little soldier; and, first place to Tony and Nadine Guetti as Little Red Riding Hood and the Big Bad Wolf.

As usual, there were many volunteers to keep things flowing smoothly.

A couple of days later, on Nov. 1, there was a pinochle game. We have heaps of fun each time we meet, but I wasn't able to be there on that day, although my mind was on the enjoyable time that they usually have. This lively game was hosted by Jim Leitzke.

Also on this day, there was a ladies' lunch at Cheddars Scratch Kitchen with 27 women attending. This was a delightful restaurant and had a varied menu — something for anyone. Many women took home parts of their lunch, as everything was very filling. They had leftovers for dinner, and they could still relive the entire day. There were several pictures taken and conversation flowed among all the women. The hostess for this luncheon was Marilyn Webb.

Later in the day, there was bingo in the community center hosted by Terri Satterlee and Cathy Hepp. Between Terri and Cathy, they keep having new types of games with big prizes. This definitely keeps everyone on their toes.

Once here at the bingo center, people gather around before the games start anticipating being a big winner for the night. But, whether you win or lose, you still have loads of fun mingling with all your friends and neighbors.

Refreshed by a reunion of old friends

I was confronted recently by the enduring question posed by the Clash and memorably highlighted in an ad for Choice hotels: Should I stay or should I go?

I'm talking about the King High School Class of 1971's 45-year reunion.

It's always easier to invent reasons not to go, of course. What'll we talk about? Haven't I heard all their stories? Haven't I told all of mine? Don't I see the people I care about from time to time anyway? I didn't lose those 20 pounds. I really could use that weekend catching up on, I don't know, something.

A further wrinkle cropped up a month or so ago: Some of my work for the late, lamented Tampa Tribune had made the finals in the Florida Press Club's annual contest; the awards banquet announcing the fate of those efforts (in commentary and feature writing) was set, in St. Augustine, for the second night of our reunion.

My decision, then, wasn't merely binary: Should I go or should I stay? It was tertiary: Should I go here or should I go there, or should simply chuck it all, put my feet up and stay home?

In the end, for me there was only one viable option.

I went to my high school reunion. After all, they come around only every five years. And, truth be told, as one of those pushing for it when some of the usual organizers thought of calling it off, I'd crossed the point of no return ages ago.

It's not like sticking by my commitment wasn't complicated. The heir apparent, who is built like a dream offensive tackle but preferred beating a bass drum to getting his head beaten on — wise lad — was, that Friday night, a part of the Senior Night festivities at Tampa Catholic High.

Now, I'm a big fan of the traditional reunion first night mingle, but Senior Night happens just once a lifetime. So, while my classmates were snacking on hors d'oeuvres and reacquainting with one another, the redoubtable Debbie and I escorted The Boy to midfield for polite applause and photographs, then settled in for the Crusaders' annual drubbing by the Jesuit Tigers.

Even then, however, it never crossed my mind we wouldn't go. Never mind the event site was nearly an hour away in Indian Rocks Beach, and that most everybody — because we have achieved a certain vulnerable age — would have packed it in.

After the final horn, we caught up with The Boy to say our farewells and reiterate our expectations — he was about to be home alone for the next 36 hours or so; it would be excellent if he didn't burn the place down. And then we set off. Finally, close to midnight, we arrived to find a healthy collection of stragglers around tables near an outdoor bar.

Just as I was about to attribute this lingering to alcohol-fueled inertia, someone sang out one of the sweetest phrases known to humans. "There you are! We've been waiting for you!"

To be clear: I was not one of the cool kids, exactly. I was a perpetual 'tweener: Not quite an athlete (I was a football placekicker), not quite a scholar, not quite a politician (though I ran frequently, I lost routinely), never (ever) a stoner. I was fringy, associated with lots of groups, rarely occupying the center of any.

Once upon a time, I was not the guy two dozen of the happening kids would have waited to catch up with. Not just in high school, but certainly not at the 10-year or, probably, even the 20-year reunions.

But time — with our class, anyway, and I expect it's this way with most — peels away clique structures. As the years mount, and the memories fade, we warm to those who shared our coming-of-age experience. This strikes me as against the odds, but the phenomenon is real.

Public high schools throw together collections of kids from backgrounds, family structures, socioeconomic status, ethnicities and ambitions so varied, each and everyone of them could serve as a sociologist's dream laboratory.

Then there's the expectation this random population ultimately will gain sophisticated academic knowledge while developing the skills necessary to become suitable human beings — all while coping with surging hormones and awkward bodies. It has proved an imperfect system.

Indeed, it's a wonder any of us emerge still talking to each other, let alone regarding ourselves as friends. For life. But, we do. People are weird.

And so we gathered, 60-some-odd of us out of a class of more than 500 (admittedly, we need to recruit better). We came together to remember the good times, smooth over some of the bad, refuse to talk politics (on the weekend before Election Day) and to ignore, as well as we could, the passage of years.

Anybody who's attended a high school reunion past the age of 50 knows the joke: Who invited all these old people?

Well. That might have made the rounds last time we gathered, but nobody uttered it all weekend. This is not definitive, of course. Super hearing is not among my powers.

Maybe the reason I didn't hear it is because, frankly, for a bunch of folks staring down the barrel of full retirement age, we looked pretty good.

With the possible exception of your humble correspondent, the Class of 1971 has held up exceptionally well. Despite the gray (or white) hair — or lack of same — the full-time eye gear, and the lines of wisdom etched on our faces, it was still possible to detect a twinkle of the kids we were all those years ago.

There is a freshening, too, in reliving old stories. One talked about the summer he picked tobacco in North Carolina — dirty, backbreaking work — and another before our senior year when he and two football teammates acted as counselors in a Blue Ridge Mountains camp run by our head coach.

Then, Sunday night, after we'd dispersed to the lives we've fashioned apart from each other, I got a private message from this very classmate who, inspired by the gathering and the photos it produced, joined Facebook to enroll in our online family.

This is not someone who wears his sentiments on his sleeve. In fact, well-suited to his chosen field — engineering — he is the essence of reticence. He studies. He analyzes. So when he speaks, people lean in, as I did when this uncharacteristically revealing assertion popped up:

Getting the gang back together wasn't just a weekend well-spent, he wrote. It made him feel 20 years younger.

It made me realize I'd felt springier in my steps, too. Somehow, a weekend among my high school mates stirred the optimistic, idealistic kid within.

He's still there. All he needed was a little nudge from the past. Which brings me to a recommendation for others weighing the high school reunion stay-or-go question.

Go, by all means.

It turns out marinating in memories can be your own Fountain of Youth.

Let's talk turkey — a few pointers about holiday foods

By Betsy Crisp, MS, LD/N
Special to The Laker / Lutz News

When the holidays arrive, you usually find families and friends gathering around the dining room table. That is precious time that we get to spend catching up on each other's lives and eat until we are stuffed — like a turkey!

Each holiday usually comes with some sort of tradition and favorite foods of the season. For most, it would not be Thanksgiving without a turkey, but where did this custom begin?

Traditionally, the main dish was a roast goose, and since they would migrate, they were only available around certain holidays/times of the year like Thanksgiving/harvest time, Christmas/Hanukkah/winter solstice, and were an important part of many ancient celebrations and rituals.

Just like turkey or chicken, a goose is a white meat. However, its breast meat is darker than a chicken or turkey breast, with a stronger flavor. That's because geese fly and develop more breast muscles, while turkeys and chickens are raised for food, and don't exercise their wings as much.

Although chicken/turkey/goose are all considered "white meat" and similar in nature, goose consumption (one-third pound per person per year) has declined and turkey has risen (17.5 pounds per person per year).

So, now that we've talked a little turkey, let's focus on some food safety tips.

To have a happy and safe holiday meal this year, be sure to follow these food safety tips.

- Thawing: Thaw your chicken/turkey/goose in the refrigerator for two to three days, depending on the size and weight of the bird. Or, you can use a sink of cold water for the thawing, but be sure to change every 30 minutes. (If you run out of time, you can thaw in the microwave, but you must immediately start cooking to keep bacteria from multiplying.) A turkey can be kept frozen up to a year for best quality, but thawing a turkey correctly is very important for food safety concerns. Do not leave turkey at room temperature for more than two hours because bacteria grow rapidly in the "danger zone" (40°F and 140°F).
- Cross-contamination: Bacteria on raw poultry can contaminate anything that it touches. Be sure to thoroughly wash your hands, utensils, and work surfaces to prevent the spread of bacteria to your food and family.
- Leftovers: Nontyphodial Salmonella is the second most common bacterial cause of foodborne illness in the United States. (Nontyphodial Salmonella is associated with undercooked poultry and cross-contamination). Clostridium perfringens is the third most common cause of illness, due to failure to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. This cause of illness increases during the holiday season, when meat and poultry account for 92 percent of foodborne illness outbreaks. So, it is important to refrigerate leftovers in the refrigerator at 40°F or below within two hours of preparation and serving — to prevent food poisoning.
- Stuffing: It is best not to stuff your turkey, but rather in a casserole dish to make sure it is thoroughly cooked. If you do choose to stuff the turkey, do so just before cooking and use a quick-temp food thermometer to make sure the stuffing's center reaches 165°F.
- Cooking: Preheat the oven to at least 325°F (I prefer 350°F). Place the completely thawed turkey with the breast side up in a roasting pan (2 inches to 2-1/2 inches deep). Cooking times will vary depending on how many pounds the turkey weighs. To make sure the turkey is done, check by using a rapid-rise food thermometer inserted into the thickest portions of the breast, thigh, and wing joint until it reaches 165°F. Let the turkey stand 20 minutes before removing all stuffing from the cavity and carving the meat.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 48 million Americans — or roughly one in six — get sick from foodborne diseases. Of those, approximately 128,000 are hospitalized and about 3,000 die.

Fall Stuffing Recipe

INGREDIENTS:

3 cups whole wheat bread, cubed
3 cups white bread, cubed
1 pound ground turkey sausage
1 cup onion, chopped
¾ cup celery, chopped
2 ½ teaspoons dried sage
1 ½ teaspoons dried rosemary
½ teaspoon dried thyme
1 apple (golden delicious or Granny Smith), cored and chopped
¾ cup dried cranberries
1/3 cup parsley, chopped
1 cup low-sodium turkey stock or low sodium chicken bouillon
4 tablespoons butter/margarine, melted

DIRECTIONS:

- Preheat oven to 350°F.
- Spread bread cubes in a single layer on a large sheet pan. Bake 5-7 minutes until lightly toasted. Add to large mixing bowl.
- In a large skillet, cook sausage and onions over medium heat while stirring/breaking up the lumps until evenly browned. Add the celery, sage, rosemary and thyme. Cook while stirring for 2 minutes to blend flavors.
- Pour sausage mixture over bread cubes in bowl. Add chopped apple, dried cranberries, parsley and mix well. Pour turkey stock and melted butter and mix lightly. Fill a buttered casserole dish (or allow to cool and stuff turkey loosely just before cooking).

Another recipe option for a smaller gathering (cooking a turkey breast in a slow-cooker)

Fresh-Herbed Turkey Breast

INGREDIENTS:

2 Tablespoons butter/margarine, softened
¼ cup fresh sage, minced
¼ cup fresh tarragon, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon salt
1 split turkey breast (3 to 4 pounds)
1 ½ Tablespoons cornstarch

DIRECTIONS:

- Thaw turkey breast (1-2 days in refrigerator), if frozen.
- Remove skin and discard. Combine butter, sage, tarragon, garlic, pepper and salt. Rub butter mixture all over breast.
- Place turkey breast in electric slow-cooker. Cover. Cook on low 8-10 hours, on high 4-5 hours, or until turkey reaches 165°F on a quick-temp food thermometer and no longer pink in the center.
- Transfer turkey breast to serving platter; cover with foil to keep warm.
- Turn slow-cooker to high; slowly whisk in cornstarch to thicken cooking liquid. When the sauce is smooth and thick, pour over turkey breast. Slice and serve.

Veterans receive warm recognition at ceremony

By Kevin Weiss

KEVIN WEISS/STAFF PHOTO

Congressman Gus Bilirakis addresses veterans and their families during a ceremony at the Tampa Bay Golf and Country Club in San Antonio.

Veterans were recognized in a special way at the Veterans Day ceremony at the Tampa Bay Golf and Country Club in San Antonio on Nov. 11.

More than a dozen surviving World War II veterans were recognized and celebrated at the ceremony.

"Veterans Day is something we don't want to forget," said John Benvengo, the ceremony's organizer.

The event featured a number of speakers, including Brig. Gen. Sean Jenkins, who's stationed at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa.

Speaking to an audience of more than 100 invited guests, Jenkins highlighted the importance of continually honoring "those who sacrifice their own lives for our country."

He noted: "We must not forget the actions of those that have served. Their commitment to duty has made our nation safer in the world of new dangers. Their actions have also upheld the ideals of America's founding."

It's equally imperative, Jenkins said, to honor the families and caregivers of veterans.

"Without them, there would be fewer veterans walking amongst us today," Jenkins said, describing veterans as "the unknown heroes walking among us."

Veterans serve as a symbol for "courage, decency and hope," he added.

Jenkins also pointed to the importance of ensuring the U.S. Department of Veteran's Affairs (VA) "takes care of those that have served."

"We're losing too many heroes," he said, "Not just because of age, but because of the loss of hope."

U.S. Rep. Gus Bilirakis, another guest speaker, said his No. 1 priority is to assist veterans.

He criticized the VA, characterizing it as "confusing bureaucracy" that has a "general lack of communication and transparency.

"I believe this agency is in some serious need of culture change," said Bilirakis, who serves as vice chairman of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs.

He continued: "Our veterans have done their duty and kept their promise to protect our nation. It is now up to us to fulfill our promise to them and remain committed to honoring their service."

Within the past three years, Bilirakis has introduced two pieces of legislation (COVER Act, PROMISE Act) to help veterans get better access to primary medical care and to address the prevalence of mental health issues amongst veterans. Both have since become laws.

"There is much more work to be done. Our congress must come together on these issues in a bipartisan fashion," he said.

Bilirakis noted the next step in helping veterans is offering supplementary assistance through additional workforce, housing and education programs.

Said Bilirakis: "The military spends six to 12 months preparing soldiers for their assignments, and yet, we only spend three to five days to help them reintegrate into civilian life. That's unacceptable."

Meanwhile, the congressman commended veterans for their "altruism and patriotism.

"They're very, very special people," he said. "They represent the best of this great country."

He added: "We would not be the nation we are today without those who served."

The ceremony also featured comments from State Rep. Danny Burgess, R-San Antonio.

Burgess, who's also a Captain in the U.S. Army Reserve as a Judge Advocate, said veterans "exemplify what service is all about."

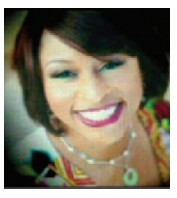

The state representative added that seeing veterans inspired him to join the military: "They are the reason that I decided to wear the uniform and serve."

Honoring military service

Bayfront Health Dade City and Gulfside Hospice hosted a Veterans Day Celebration Breakfast and Pinning Ceremony on Nov. 11. Twenty-nine veterans' names were called and each was recognized for their service in the various United States military branches with an American flag pin and a personalized certificate. A fallen soldier table served as a reminder of those veterans who gave their lives to serve their country. The veterans observed a moment of silence before the pinning to pay respect to those represented by the table. Gary Gibson, Navy veteran of 27 years, bows his head during the veterans' prayer.

The Light Ahead

By Trinity Memorial Gardens

There are only two ways to live your life. One is as though nothing is a miracle. The other is as though everything is a miracle. ~Albert Einstein

Q. Why do we "Trust" our pre-need sales versus selling insurance?

Trinity Memorial Gardens (TMG) has never sold insurance products to provide for pre-need sales financing. Since its inception, TMG has trusted, under the statutes of the State of Florida, all pre-need arrangements. Hence, we set aside 110% of our cost of any product sold, but not delivered. Those funds stay in the Trust Fund until such time as the pre-need contract is fulfilled by us. We have a Trust company that invests and manages the funds for us, and each month we submit a request for withdrawals based on deliveries, and cut a check for the proper trust amount for any pre-need sales the month prior.

We are further required to set aside 10% of all property sales into a Care and Maintenance Trust Fund. These dollars can never be withdrawn, but the cemetery is allowed to use the earnings on those funds to help provide for the care and maintenance of the cemetery grounds and buildings.

Most importantly, the State of Florida audits our trusting activities, on average, every other year. That audit is concentrated on the accuracy of our trusting per the guidelines set by the state. We are proud that our history of trust auditing has produced very small adjustments in the past eight years.

Insurance has a place for a number of buyers of pre-need arrangements. It can be particularly useful for the younger buyer, who may still have young children at home, for example. However, for most people older than fifty, the insurance products end up placing a bit of, and sometimes a lot of, additional expense to the buyer, versus a straight purchase of pre-planned arrangements. We provide a wide variety of products, services and financing options.

Lucy, 5, Caroline, 8, and Nicholas, 10.

"It's history," Shelton said, explaining why she wanted them to be there as she voted for Clinton, the first female presidential nominee of a major political party.

"This is a big moment," Shelton said.

She did note, however, that her support for Clinton was not absolute: "I have some questions about trustworthiness for her," she said. But, she added: "I feel Donald Trump is not fit to be our president. I think he is beyond ridiculous."

Fifty-eight-year-old Gordon Brown, who cast his vote at the Lutz Community Center, thinks that Clinton is the one unfit to be president.

Brown characterized Clinton as "morally bankrupt, criminally corrupt and totally untrustworthy.

"And, those are her good qualities," he added.

Casey Otto, 36, who brought his 4-year-old daughter, Indie, with him to cast his ballot, also voted at the Lutz Community Center.

He dressed his little girl in red, white and blue to mark the occasion.

Otto supported Gary Johnson. "I tend to be Libertarian — fiscally conservative and socially liberal. He's most in line with my line of thinking," Otto said.

Seventy-eight-year-old Mary Gaulden, of Land O' Lakes, sat on a stool near the Land O' Lakes Community Center, proudly holding a Trump sign. She wanted to demonstrate her support to passing motorists and people streaming in to vote.

"I think America is at a crossroads," Gaulden said. "I really want Donald Trump to win the presidency."

She criticized President Barack Obama.

"Our president is not being the Commander-in-Chief that he needs to be. Our military is weakened," said Gaulden, who arrived at the polling place at 10 a.m., and was still there in the late afternoon.

Throughout the day, she said motorists reacted to her sign.

Some honked as they drove past.

"I've got a thumb's up; a thumb's down; a bird of paradise," Gaulden said.

Some hollered "No," at her. Others stopped and told her they voted for Trump.

One passerby even pretended to be taking aim — with an imaginary gun — to shoot at her, she said.

Her response?

"I just waved and smiled," Gaulden said.

No matter where they stood, voters wanted their voice to be heard.

Pasco County boasted a 72.8 percent voter turnout, with 244,620 of its 336,037 registered voters casting ballots. Turnout was slightly lower in Hillsborough County, where 606,224 of the county's 849,843 registered voters cast ballots, or 71.3 percent.

While the presidential election clearly took center stage, voters decided many other important races and issues.

Voters gave U.S. Rep. Gus Bilirakis, a Republican in District 12, another term in Congress. He defeated Robert Matthew Tager.

A majority of Pasco and Hillsborough voters concurred with other Florida voters to send Marco Rubio back to Washington for another term in the U.S. Senate. He defeated Democratic challenger Patrick Murphy.

In state races, State Sen. Jack Latvala retained his seat in the Legislature, and Amber Mariano defeated Amanda Murphy in the race for State House District 36.

Regarding the four Constitutional Amendments on the ballot, a majority of Pasco and Hillsborough voters weighing in on those issues agreed with the majority of voters across the state to decide the outcomes.

They voted down an amendment relating to solar power.

They approved amendments regarding medical marijuana, a tax exemption for totally and permanently disabled first responders, and a homestead tax exemption for certain senior, low-income and long-term residents.

Mary Gaulden, active in Pasco Republican party politics, sat on a stool in front of the Land O' Lakes Community Center to show her support for Donald J. Trump, who defeated Hillary Rodham Clinton.

VOTER REACTIONS

JILL WEBER, ZEPHYRHILLS

Jill Weber, 67, who voted at the Alice Hall Community Center in Zephyrhills, had issues with Amendment 2, the Florida Medical Marijuana Legalization Initiative.

"I think they need to rewrite that," she said. "I am for medical marijuana, but they write other things in there that makes it not good.

"I don't want kids being able to go into these quick gas stations and buying Spice (synthetic marijuana)."

Weber added that marijuana "should be sold at a doctor's office" and shouldn't be legalized for recreational usage, which she thinks will increase crime.

"Somebody's got to look at it with some common sense," she said.

Weber said she voted for Trump based on his economic plans.

JIM BEIDLER, LAND O' LAKES

Jim Beidler, a Navy veteran from Land O' Lakes, supported Donald J. Trump.

"I don't like her lies and her attitude toward Benghazi. That is wrong," he said of Clinton.

Beidler thinks more highly of Trump's running mate, Mike Pence, than he does of Trump.

"He's more well-rounded," Beidler said. "He has a filter. He's not throwing words out."

LORI WRIGHT, LAND O' LAKES

Lori Wright, of Land O' Lakes, said Hillary Rodham Clinton would be dangerous as president.

"I don't think she has the best interests of the American people at heart," she said. "She put us in danger with her lazy handling of information. And, she allowed men in Benghazi to die."

But, she also said she would accept the election's outcome.

"I believe God will put whomever He wants in office," she said.

On the other hand, she added, "I'm here doing my part."

MELINA AND ADAM MAYS, LAND O' LAKES

Melina and Adam Mays looked to their faith to inform their presidential decision.

They cast votes for Donald J. Trump and Mike Pence at The Groves. The couple was joined by their children, Kaelyn, 4, and Wyatt, 2.

"We've been praying a lot about it. I'm very pro-life and Catholic," Melina Mays said.

The couple was troubled by the ugliness of the election.

"We're tired of the commercials. It's been a rough campaign," Adam Mays said.

DEB GOLDMAN, LUTZ

Deb Goldman came to the Lutz Community Center three times on Election Day.

"I teach Jazzercise. I taught a class at 5:45 this morning, and at 7, the line was out the building. So, I went home. I came back at 8:10 and there were still more cars than this in the parking lot. So, I go do my class (at 8:30). So, I came back. This time, no lines, no waiting.

"I supported Donald Trump. I thought he was the better candidate."

JAMES BEVERLY, WESLEY CHAPEL

James Beverly said he lives in a neighborhood that's apparently filled with Donald J. Trump supporters.

Beverly, however, is not one of them.

"The man is a complete idiot," Beverly said. "He's a joke."

He's worried about what happens after the election. "It scares me," Beverly said.

The election of Hillary Rodham Clinton as the nation's first woman president, on the other hand, would be historic.

"It will bring world peace and harmony," Beverly said. "It would make the world stop looking at us like a joke, like at SNL (Saturday Night Live)."

general consensus seems to be that while it was a very engaging campaign, it was too long, too negative, too expensive, and too divisive.

At the end of a very long, fiercely-fought, and contentious presidential election, Florida kept its record of picking winners intact, albeit by a very narrow 1 percent—the same margin by which Barack Obama won Florida in the 2012 election.

Few realize that since 1964, Florida has voted as the nation at-large in every election except for 1992, when George Herbert Walker Bush narrowly defeated Bill Clinton in his first race for the White House.

Pre-election polls had generally predicted that Hillary Clinton would win Florida. So when the networks called Donald Trump the winner at around 11:30 p.m., on Election Night, it came as a shock to many political analysts around the globe.

A closer look at turnout and voting patterns reveals that Clinton was not able to repeat what Obama had done in Florida in 2012. Turnout and support levels among millennials and black voters were lower, offset by significantly higher rates among white voters in the state's rural and suburban areas. The women's vote was less cohesive than in 2012, and the Latino vote, while greater, was less unified than projected. Economics mattered more than other issues, and change mattered more than the status quo. In the end, those desperate for a change in direction of the country slightly outnumbered those valuing experience and the continuation of Obama's policies.

HOW DID TRUMP DEFY EXPECTATIONS?

There are 10 big reasons for Trump's win, based on election results and a national press pool exit poll of around 4,000 Florida voters:

Reason No. 1: Trump ran up a large margin of victory in the famous Interstate 4 Corridor (the Tampa and Orlando media markets) where 44 percent of the state's registered voters reside. Trump won the corridor 51 percent to 45 percent thanks to the area's suburban counties where turnout and the vote margin for Trump was high. Trump did considerably better in three bellwether suburban counties (Pasco, Polk and Manatee) than Romney did in 2012. Clinton won only three of the 18 counties in the corridor—Orange, Osceola and Hillsborough—all large urban counties.

Statewide, more than (54 percent) of those voting came from suburban or rural areas and most of both areas chose Trump. A majority of voters from urban areas picked Clinton.

Reason No. 2: Clinton did not do as well as Obama had in 2012. Clinton underperformed Obama's share of the vote in every market except Miami, and underperformed his margin of victory in every market but Miami and Gainesville. The falloff in the vote share of Clinton was steepest in the Tampa Bay media market, from 49 percent for Obama in 2012 to 44 percent for Clinton in 2016.

Reason No. 3: The state's black voters did not turn out at the high level they did for Obama in 2012, nor did they give Clinton as wide a margin. In 2012, Obama's margin of victory over Romney among black voters was 91 percent; hers over Trump was 76 percent.

Reason No. 4: Even though the Latino share of all voters increased significantly in 2016, Trump did better than expected among the state's Hispanic voters. He received 35 percent of the Latino vote—a figure well above what many polls had projected in light of Trump's harsh comments about immigrants. Press coverage of the impact of the huge influx of Puerto Rican votes into the state inferred that the bulk of Hispanics would vote Democrat and that would be enough to propel Clinton to the White House. However, such accounts did not accurately describe the diversity of Florida's Hispanic voters.

Reason No. 5: Clinton did not do as well among women voters as expected. Among women voters who were the majority of all voters, Clinton got 50 percent, Trump 46 percent, and other candidates 4 percent. Her 4 percent margin of victory fell short of Obama's 7 percent in 2012—in spite of Trump's degrading comments about women revealed in the Access Hollywood tape. Clinton did better among single than married women, and among older women more than younger women, especially millennials.

Reason No. 6: Clinton had difficulty generating support (and turnout) from the millennials and GenXers who make up half of Florida's registered voters. These generations voted heavily for Obama in 2008 and 2012, but more than a third voted for Trump in 2016. There was also stronger support among younger votes for the third party candidates—Johnson and Stein—than among older generations.

For many younger voters who had leaned toward Bernie Sanders (Democrats) or Marco Rubio (Republicans) in the March Presidential Preference Primary, Clinton represented the status quo—a continuation of the two-party system that many view as corrupt, in large part due to elected officials' heavy reliance on campaign contributions from special interests.

Reason No. 7: Nearly half (48 percent) identified the economy as the most important issue facing the country. Of those, 49 percent voted for Clinton, 46 percent for Trump. But, other economic questions tell a different story. Two-thirds of Florida voters have a negative opinion of the current condition of the national economy; 67 percent of them voted for Trump. Likewise, more than 70 percent describe their own financial situation today as worse or about the same (stagnant) as four years ago. A majority of each group voted for Trump. Obamacare was another economic issue that helped Trump. Nearly half of Florida voters said it "went too far" and of those, 77 percent voted for Trump.

Reason No. 8: A huge portion — 73 percent — of Florida voters were dissatisfied or angry with the federal government. Of those, 59 percent voted for Trump. Anti-Washington sentiments have run deep for almost a decade. The national exit poll results show that nearly two-thirds (62 percent) of voters across the country said the country was headed in the wrong direction—albeit for different reasons.

Reason No. 9: Clinton's promise to continue the policies of the Obama administration made it easier for voters wanting change rather than the status quo to choose Trump.

Reason No. 10: The underestimation of the enthusiasm gap between Trump and Clinton supporters was one of the greatest missteps by the press and the Clinton campaign. Their erroneous assumption was that the far larger crowds Trump was drawing was more out of curiosity than any strong attraction to his platform calling for change. Yet history tells us that after one party holds the White House for two terms, enthusiasm among those identifying with the other party is greater in the next election (Republicans in 2016).

All-star football game on tap for Dec. 8

By Kevin Weiss
kweiss@lakerlutznews.com

The rosters have been set.

The coaches are named.

Now, event organizers are looking to build off the success of last year's inaugural Pasco County all-star football game.

The 2016 Pasco County East-West Classic is slated for Dec. 8 at 7 p.m., at Sunlake Field, 3023 Sunlake Blvd., in Land O' Lakes.

A total of 80 players — all seniors— representing each of Pasco's 15 high schools were selected in a "draft day" format last month.

Players on the East team will represent Land O' Lakes, Wiregrass Ranch, Wesley Chapel, Zephyrhills, Pasco, Bishop McLaughlin and Zephyrhills Christian Academy.

Players on the West team will represent River Ridge, Ridgewood, Mitchell, Anclote, Hudson, Fivay, Gulf and Sunlake.

The game, organized by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), had a strong showing in its first year, with nearly 2,000 fans in attendance.

"Last year, being the first time, we didn't know what to expect," said Bob Durham, FCA area director. "It was very exciting, and all the events went well."

The game went so well, in fact, the Pasco County school district has asked the FCA to organize all-star showcase games for other sports, such as baseball, basketball and soccer.

First up: a Pasco County all-star baseball game in May 2017.

"They want us to do a lot of different sports, and we're honored by the offer," Durham said. "We just said to them we're happy to do it...and let's just take our time and do one sport at a time."

The idea for a countywide all-star football game was spearheaded by Durham, upon the suggestion of Pasco Area FCA board of directors, who pointed to the success of long-established all-star games in both Hillsborough and Pinellas counties.

Durham said high school football coaches in Pasco tried to create an all-star showcase for more than a decade, but plans never materialized, due to constant personnel changes countywide.

For various reasons, it never was executed, he said.

The game, Durham said, gives high school seniors one last chance to perform in front of college recruiters, many of whom attend the game from all across the southeast region.

"A lot of these guys are looking at Division II, or Division III schools. Some have Division I potential, but most are DII or DIII," Durham explained. "Their season's over, their playoffs are done, and they get one more game to showcase themselves."

Wiregrass Ranch head coach Mark Kantor said the game is especially important for players on teams that didn't advance to the playoffs.

"It gives kids the opportunity for another game to be put on their highlight reel," Kantor said. "In a setting like this with other good players, it's always good for them."

Zephyrhills head coach Nick Carroll said the annual all-star game is "a very good thing" for Pasco County.

"We've started a tradition," Carroll said. "It exposes Pasco County and the best play in it, so...we're able to show the talent we do have, at different positions."

Carroll added: "Hopefully we got some recruiters in town...and playing against other top talent throughout the county, it will hopefully shoot (players) up the recruiting boards for colleges."

Meanwhile, Durham said Sunlake Field might possibly be the permanent home for future Pasco all-star football games.

"It's such an ideal location in the middle of the county," he said. "We'll talk about it, and I'll just open it up to the coaches, and have them decide it."

Tickets for the game are $10. For information, visit PascoAllStarGame.com.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Wesley Chapel Land O' Lakes Satellite Rotary is seeking businesses and organizations to participate in the Heritage Holiday Card Walk, from Dec. 3 to Jan. 7, at the Land O' Lakes Community Center, at 5401 Land O' Lakes Blvd., in Land O' Lakes.

The event will have 30 full-size cards on display.

Card designs can be made of plywood or purchased from a local sign company. Cards must be approximately 6 feet by 4 feet to 8 feet by 4 feet in size and framed to stand securely with ground posts.

There will be electrical outlets if you choose to light your card.

Cards can be placed on Dec. 3 between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m.

A contest will take place for first, second and third place during the Traditions in the Park event on Dec. 3.

For information, call (813) 996-3011.

PIZZA PIE

Uncle Maddio's Pizza opened its first Tampa area restaurant in the Northgate Square shopping plaza, at 3949 Van Dyke Road, in Lutz, according to a news release from Atlanta-based Hartman Public Relations.

The franchise owners are Lutz residents Ada and Mike Mateo.

The restaurant is more than 3,500 square feet with a 300-square-foot patio for outdoor seating. The Lutz location is the first of five Uncle Maddio's planned for the Tampa area.

The retired couple chose a location next to Publix where many Lutz residents shop, and, according to the press release, they see opportunities for "fast-casual pizza" in the Tampa area.

The restaurant allows guests to create their own pizza, cooked in fast-baked ovens, and delivered to their table in about eight minutes.

Guests can choose among four sizes, three crusts, including a gluten-free option, and top their pie off with any of 48 toppings, six sauces, 27 vegetables and 15 meats.

Everything is fresh and made in the restaurant.

For more information, you can visit Facebook.com/UncleMaddiosLutz or UncleMaddios.com.

Challenge benefits veterans and their families

More than 100 participants took part in the third annual Connerton Challenge 10K, 5K and Kids' Fun Run on Nov. 5, and produced impressive results both on and off the course. The course ran throughout the master-planned community. For the third year, Operation Helping Hand, the event's beneficiary, received a $1,000 donation from Connerton. Operation Helping Hand is a project of the Tampa Chapter of Military Officers Association of America. The volunteer organization helps the families of wounded and injured veterans during their stay in Tampa Bay. Operation Helping Hand representatives Bob and Sherry Markee accepted the contribution from Connerton's marketing coordinator, Joan Staut, after the event.
